

sation with M. Horan, 71; his list of pro-scription, 75, n.; parallel between his return in 1815 from Elba, and his return in 1799 from Egypt, 84, ».; plans for his escape from Elba, 85; letter to the Duke de Bassmo, 92; his suspicion of Bourri-enne, 94; persecution of women, 95; of Madame de Stael, 96; his subjects' distrust of, 98; and Maria Louisa, during the Cent Jours, 98, n.; his despatch to Davoust relative to Bourrienne's embezzlements in Hamburg, 100; his obligatory submission to the curb of a representative government, 101; acts and decrees of, 102; political manoeuvres, 103; conversation with M. Benjamin Constant, 105; disgusted with the populace, 109; draws up a new constitution, ib.; his ideas of a constitution, as expressed by Metternich, 110, n.; attempts to carry off the Empress Maria Louisa, 111; receives a letter from Vienna, 112; reproaches Fouché, 115; his character as a constitutional monarch, 116; present at the ceremony of the Champ-de-Mai, 118, *?*i.; report of the journals respecting, 119; dress of his brothers at the ceremony, 119, ».; quarrel with the Legislative Body, 120; speech of, 121; prepares for the ensuing campaign, 122; trouble given him by his brothers with reference to their places in the Chamber of Peers, 122, n.; joins his army at Laon, 124; his state of mind at Waterloo, its effect on the fortune of that battle, 124, n.; amount of his army, 125; proclamation to, 127; address to the Belgians, 129, n.; reviews his troops, 134; during the Hundred Days, 135 et seq.; at review, on April 16, 135; at the Frangais, 138; a well-turned compliment to Talma, ib.; Imperial public works recommenced during the Hundred Days, 139; puts his army in motion, 141; his plans, 142; attacks the Prussians at Ligny, 145; strength of his army at Ligny, 145, n.; battle of Quatre Bras, 149; his staff at Waterloo, 154, n.; accusations against General Grouchy, 155; unites with Marshal Ney, 156; remarks respecting, 159; arrangement of his troops at Waterloo, 163; battle of Waterloo, 167; his delay, on June 17, before Waterloo, 167, n.; attacks Mont St. Jean, 169; his admiration of the British army, 173; orders the Imperial Guard to advance, 180; address to them, 181; observation of, 182; total rout of his army, 183; remarks respecting him, 184;

escapes to Philippeville, 187; letter to his brother Joseph, 188; persuaded
 to retire from the Held, 200;
 his interview
 with Lavallette, 201; returns
 to Parin, 202; proposal
 for his abdication, ib. ;
 declaration to the French people, 205; act
 of abdication, 206; retires to Malmaiwon,
 207; letters
 respecting, 209, «., 210, n. ;
 arrives at Rochefort, 211;
 attempts to depart for America, ib. ; M.
 Chaboulou'e
 account of his surrender, 212;
 disembarks at
 the Idle of Aix, 213; his letter to the Prince Regent, 214;
 embarks on board the liellrrophon, ib.; his conversation
 with lb«
 officers, 216;
 his praise of the
 niarincM, ib.;
 orders
 respecting him, 217, 2H>; conversation with Capt. Maitland, 218; informed
 of his destined exile to Kt.
 Helena, 219; his companions on the voyage, UH», n.; his grief, 220;
 sciidti a weeond
 letter to the Prince Regent,
ib.; biw proteHt, 221; transferred to the Northumberland
 , 222; sails for
 St. Helena,
 307; rcmurku
 re specting him, 308; his occupation)*,, 'S OU; commences
 his own
 Memoirs, 311;
 hiniln at St.
 Helena, 312;
 his temporary
 residence at Mr.
 Balcoinbe'u, 313;
 bin unniHe-
 ments, 314;
 hi« power to sleep at will,
 316, n.; removes
 to Longwood, 317; bin life at Longwood, 317,
 «., • bin
 apurtmenu
 there, 318; hia domentie
 eHtablilitunent, 319; corrects
*Tfu' Cnmintiyti
 of Italy*, ib.;
 instructions f<;r

hia treatment, 32(1; admits (Sir
 Hudson Lowe
 to u privuUi audience, 322; his conversation with him, 323; with Mr.
 O'Meixru, 325; bin
 dtapuu* with Sir
 Hudson Lowe, 1527; renolvew to dinpoHCof hiri
 plate, 329; hin
 phyKio#nomy, 330;
 comparative
 behavior, 331;
 refuwH to acknowledge
 himself a primmer, IJlW: his opinion of the title of Kniperor, 332, n.;
 his opinion of the battle of Waterloo, 335; MB
 opinion of Wellington, 330;
 hint days 339;
 his death, 357;
 funorul, 'WO;
 history of the diamond meeklaru presented to him by Hoi-tense, 'J»13,
n., • biw last
 words, 366, n.;
 bin priceless ^ifl
 to General Bertram!, 3(57, n. ;
 bix tomb ut Hi.
 Helena opened,
 370; bm
 renmiun reach France, 371;
 their journey to l'uri«, 371 et seg. ; taken to the Invalided, 372; Hiitn-mary of his character, 374;
 bl« will, 370;
 reasons for making
 out the (?odldl, 3Hel, n.
Napoleon's Memoirs, extracts
 from,! . KW, n., 316, n., 351, «., ii.
 100.
 Narbonne, Comte
 Louis de,
 Napoleow'n
 prepossession in favor of, II. uwj;
 remurk